"The war and the warrior are not the same, are never the same.

We are defined by what we did, not who we fought, nor why.

We did what we did and that alone made us. We risked the pain and absorbed it, for that is what warriors do.

*We were needed, we responded, and we learned the truth of men and every secret only warri*ors know.

We leave the explanation and the written history of us to others.

We are not our war: we are ourselves, loyal together forever beyond your understanding, as ever it must be."

Jay Harden. He survived air combat in Vietnam and navigated his B-52 crew safely home 63 times.

For God and Country and The Florissant Valley Memorial Post 444.

Edd Chappelle, Commander.
