"You signed your names on the front lines war. Many only teenagers, yet you knew what you were fighting for. You packed your duffle bags with manhood while putting away your adolescence. You left behind family, children, and even friends to become a protector of our nation. Adorned in a uniform of freedom and pride, you march with bravery on the battlefield of uncertainty. By land, ship, or sea you proudly and selflessly carried our your duty. You are the stars represented on our flag. America salutes you for your future, present and especially your past."

Protectors, Kanesha Washington, US Army.

For God and Country and The Florissant Valley Memorial Post 444.

Edd Chappelle, Commander.
