THANKSGIVING

President George Washington was the first President to make a Thanksgiving Day proclamation on October 3, 1789. Three years after the War of 1812, President Madison proclaimed a special Thanksgiving for peace. It was not until the victory at Gettysburg that President Lincoln issued a proclamation naming the last Thursday in November as the date in 1863.

Please remember our solders, sailors, marines, airmen/women and first responders throughout our country and the world.

For God and Country and The Florissant Valley Memorial Post 444.

Edd Chappelle, Commander.
